What is happening online?

Crimes Against Children Research Center has provided the following data	77% of the targets for online predators were age 14 or older. Another 22% were users ages 10 to 13.
	One in five U.S. teenagers who regularly log on to the Internet say they have received an unwanted sexual solicitation via the Web. Solicitations were defined as requests to engage in sexual activities or sexual talk, or to give personal sexual information.
	25% of children have been exposed to unwanted pornographic material online.
	Only 1/3 of households with Internet access are actively protecting their children with filtering or blocking software.
	Only approximately 25% of children who encountered a sexual approach or solicitation told a parent or adult.

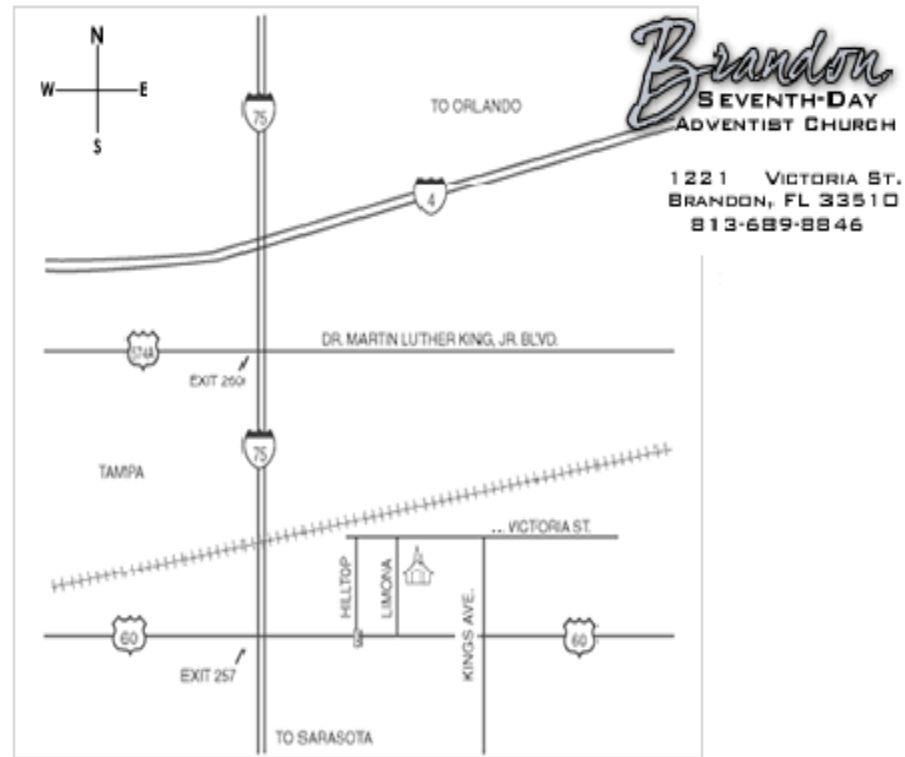

A Safety Awareness Seminar for Parents and Educators

Seminar Summary

Children and families are at risk. The proliferation of the Internet has had one unfortunate consequence. A dark and seedy side of this very powerful communication tool has reared its ugly head in the form of Internet predators. Designed for parents and educators, Teens 'N' Technology: What You Don't Know Can Hurt Them, is based on research and data provided from the National Association of Missing and Exploited Children in association with Netsmartz.org. This exciting and educational event is facilitated by a technology consultant with over 20 years experience and more importantly, a fellow parent. The goal of T'N'T Seminars is to provide tools and resources that will aid in the battle against Internet predators and promote online safety for children and parents.

Parents and educators are invited to attend this free seminar Teens 'N' Technology: What You Don't Know Can Harm Them to learn valuable information.
